

Vital Therapies is hiring! www.vitaltherapies.com. We are an exciting life science company located in the Carmel Mountain Ranch area of San Diego. Vital Therapies is a pioneer and recognized world leader in the treatment of acute liver failure. We are expanding our clinical treatment team to support our current clinical trials in the administration of ELAD treatment at our clinical sites the US and globally. These highly specialized individuals can only be trained by Vital Therapies, and are amongst a handful of people in the world that can become certified to administer this revolutionary new treatment for acute liver disease. Successful candidates for this position should have a strong clinical background, such as RN's with critical care and/or extracorporeal device experience, foreign or domestic MDs or perfusionists. Candidate should desire a fast paced and challenging small company environment, where we have brilliant people accomplishing amazing things within world renowned medical institutions.

Qualified candidates may submit resumes and salary history to careers@vitaltherapies.com.

Within a clinical trial setting, the successful candidate will be responsible for traveling up to 50-75% of their time (domestic and international) to various clinical hospital settings globally to support patient treatment efforts to deliver ELAD treatment. For more information about ELAD treatment, please visit our website at www.vitaltherapies.com.

On average, the first three months of employment is a preceptorship which includes intensive training on the ELAD System and clinical research both in a classroom and ICU clinical setting. Additionally, there are extensive credentialing requirements for the ELAD Specialist to gain access into our 50+ clinical hospitals, which includes background checks, drug tests, HIPAA testing, immunization records and other required training and documentation. The ELAD Specialist preceptorship position is an hourly position, and once completed, the candidate will be eligible to be promoted to a Senior ELAD Specialist (SES) position as a salaried employee who can work independently at our clinical sites during patient treatment.

The (Sr.) ELAD Specialist does not administer direct patient care, but is responsible at the patient bedside for maintaining the ELAD System and preserving the efficacy of our proprietary liver cells during the treatment of patients. The successful candidate will have experience in critical care nursing or perfusion, in the ICU, where they have developed strong critical thinking and technical skills in a fast paced healthcare environment. They will also have hands on technical experience with equipment used in the critical care settings, such as ECMO, dialysis, ventilators or similar equipment/devices. Candidates must be able to work and communicate in a team environment. We will give preference to candidates who are bilingual in Spanish or German.

If you think you have what it takes to be successful in this unique opportunity, please forward your resume and salary history to careers@vitaltherapies.com